

BUSINESS SCHOOL

The London South Bank University Business School has a new home!

From April 2019 the Business School will have its own dedicated building - the Learning Resources Centre (LRC) - right in the heart of our Southwark Campus.

The building will be a space for all students and staff from the Business School to learn, network and relax. Each floor has flexible learning spaces to support modern teaching practices, social space for community events and a wellbeing zone for students and staff to use.

"I am so pleased to welcome you to our new Business School home.

Our fabulous, flexible space and new Bloomberg studio will enable us to deliver a professional education in an environment that is fit-for-the-future. For the first time ever, our academics, support staff, students and entrepreneurs will be working side by side in our very own state of the art community space within which we can work, study and socialise together. I look forward to seeing you there!"

Sarah Moore-Williams, Dean of the London South Bank Business School

Move timeline

All academic staff from the Business School moved to the LRC in April 2019, with staff from the Business School Administration Office moving in September 2019.

The building will be fully open from September 2019 to welcome students from the 2019/20 academic year and beyond.
