Fees for September 2020
At London South Bank University we have set our course fee for full-time Home students at £9,250 to help ensure the quality of our education is not compromised.

No upfront fees
Full-time or part-time Home undergraduate students, studying for their first degree, can apply for a Tuition Fee Loan from the Government via Student Finance England (SFE) www.gov.uk/student-finance. The loan is paid directly to London South Bank University, so you do not have to pay any tuition fees upfront.

Support towards living costs
Full-time and part-time students may also receive support towards maintenance costs from the Government via SFE.

Key Facts on Tuition Fees
Here are some key facts every potential student should know.

- For 2020/21, London South Bank University has set its full-time fee at £9,250. For details on individual part-time fees complete a course search at lsbu.ac.uk
- No payment upfront. You don’t have to pay for your course upfront. Home students, studying their first degree, can get a tuition fee loan from the Government.
- Part-time undergraduate Home students are eligible for tuition fee loans on the same basis as full-time students (provided they complete at least 25% of the full-time course load in each year and meet set eligibility criteria.)
- Home/EU Health & Social Care students studying pre-registration health and social care courses at LSBU, such as nursing and radiography, no longer have their tuition fees paid by the NHS. Since September 2017 Home students on these courses have been eligible for the full package of Student Finance England funding, including the Tuition Fee Loan, in line with all other undergraduate courses. However, there is some additional support available via the

NHS Business Services Authority: www.nhsbsa.nhs.uk/learningsupport-fund
- For 2020/21, the government has announced that it will provide additional funding support for both new and continuing healthcare students. Visit www.nhsbsa.nhs.uk/nhs-learning-support-fund for further information and instructions on how to apply for September 2020.
- You only start to pay back the loan in the April which falls 3 years after you started your course, but only if you are earning over £25,000 a year.
- You only repay 9% of your annual income above £25,000. So, if your income is £30,000 a year gross (pre-tax), the 9% would only apply to £5,000 – meaning you would repay £37 a month.
- An example is below:

<thead>
<tr>

<th>Monthly repayment</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>

- Graduates who commenced their undergraduate studies on/after 1 September 2012 pay 9% of everything they earn above £25,000.
- It’s more like a tax than a loan. It’s repaid through your employer via the tax system and repayments increase with earnings.
- If you’re self-employed, you repay the student loan just like you repay tax – via the Inland Revenue’s Self Assessment scheme.
- If your income falls below £25,000 your repayments stop.
- Any outstanding balance is written off after 30 years.

Financial support while you’re studying
Full-time undergraduate students may also get support towards their living costs through a maintenance loan. This money is paid direct to students’ bank accounts.

Maintenance Loan
The amount you can borrow depends on where you live and study and your household income. For example, a loan of up to £12,010 a year is available if you live away from home and study in London. A loan of up to £7,747 a year is available if you live with your parents and study in London.

Package of support for 2020/21
This table shows the kind of support on offer to students living away from home and studying in London.

Part-time students starting in 2020/21 are entitled to a proportion of the maintenance funds shown above, according to the intensity of study per year. For example, a student taking 60 credits in one year, studying in London and not living with parents would be entitled to 50% (£6,005) of the full-time rate.
